“Higher education is unique in its ability to catalyze truly transformative change...”

THE POWER OF A POSTSECONDARY EDUCATION

COLLABORATING TO GROW WEST VIRGINIA'S WORKFORCE

Higher education is unique in its ability to catalyze truly transformative change – for those who earn their postsecondary credentials, and for the many who go on to benefit from their achievements. Looking ahead, we know that 60 percent of working-aged West Virginians will need a certificate or degree in order to meet the state's future workforce demands. But currently, less than one-third of residents hold an associate degree or higher.

That's why, here in West Virginia, we are doubling down on our efforts to arm more of our citizens with the education or training they need beyond high school to be successful throughout their lives. This requires unprecedented levels of collaboration across many agencies and efforts. For the Higher Education Policy Commission and Community and Technical College System, this means pushing beyond our own boundaries every single day.

Together with the West Virginia Department of Education, WorkForce West Virginia, and the private sector, we are working steadily toward the critical goal established by West Virginia's Climb initiative: that 60 percent of the Mountain State's workforce will have a formal credential beyond high school by 2030.

The good news is that, thanks to recent forward-looking investments from leaders across West Virginia, we have more programs in place to help us reach that goal. As a premier example, during the 2019 legislative session, we worked with the Legislature to enact a last-dollar-in grant program, West Virginia Invests, that covers tuition and fees at the state's community and technical colleges. We also worked with state leaders this year to create West Virginia's newest and most prestigious state scholarship, the Underwood-Smith Teaching Scholars Program, which will help fill critical teacher shortages in math, science, elementary education, and special education.

In this report, the 2019 West Virginia Higher Education Almanac – a hallmark of our recent efforts to streamline reporting measures for institutions – you will find the progress our colleges and universities have made over the last year toward West Virginia's Climb goal. You'll see successes worth celebrating, as well as areas that need intentional improvements.

Together with each of our partners, we look forward to building on recent progress and thoughtfully tackling the challenges ahead – as we continue climbing toward a brighter future for West Virginia.

Students in the Electric Distribution Engineering Technology program at New River Community and Technical College demonstrate their skills to prospective employers during the college's annual Tech Expo.

2019 HIGHLIGHTS

WV INVESTS GRANT PROGRAM

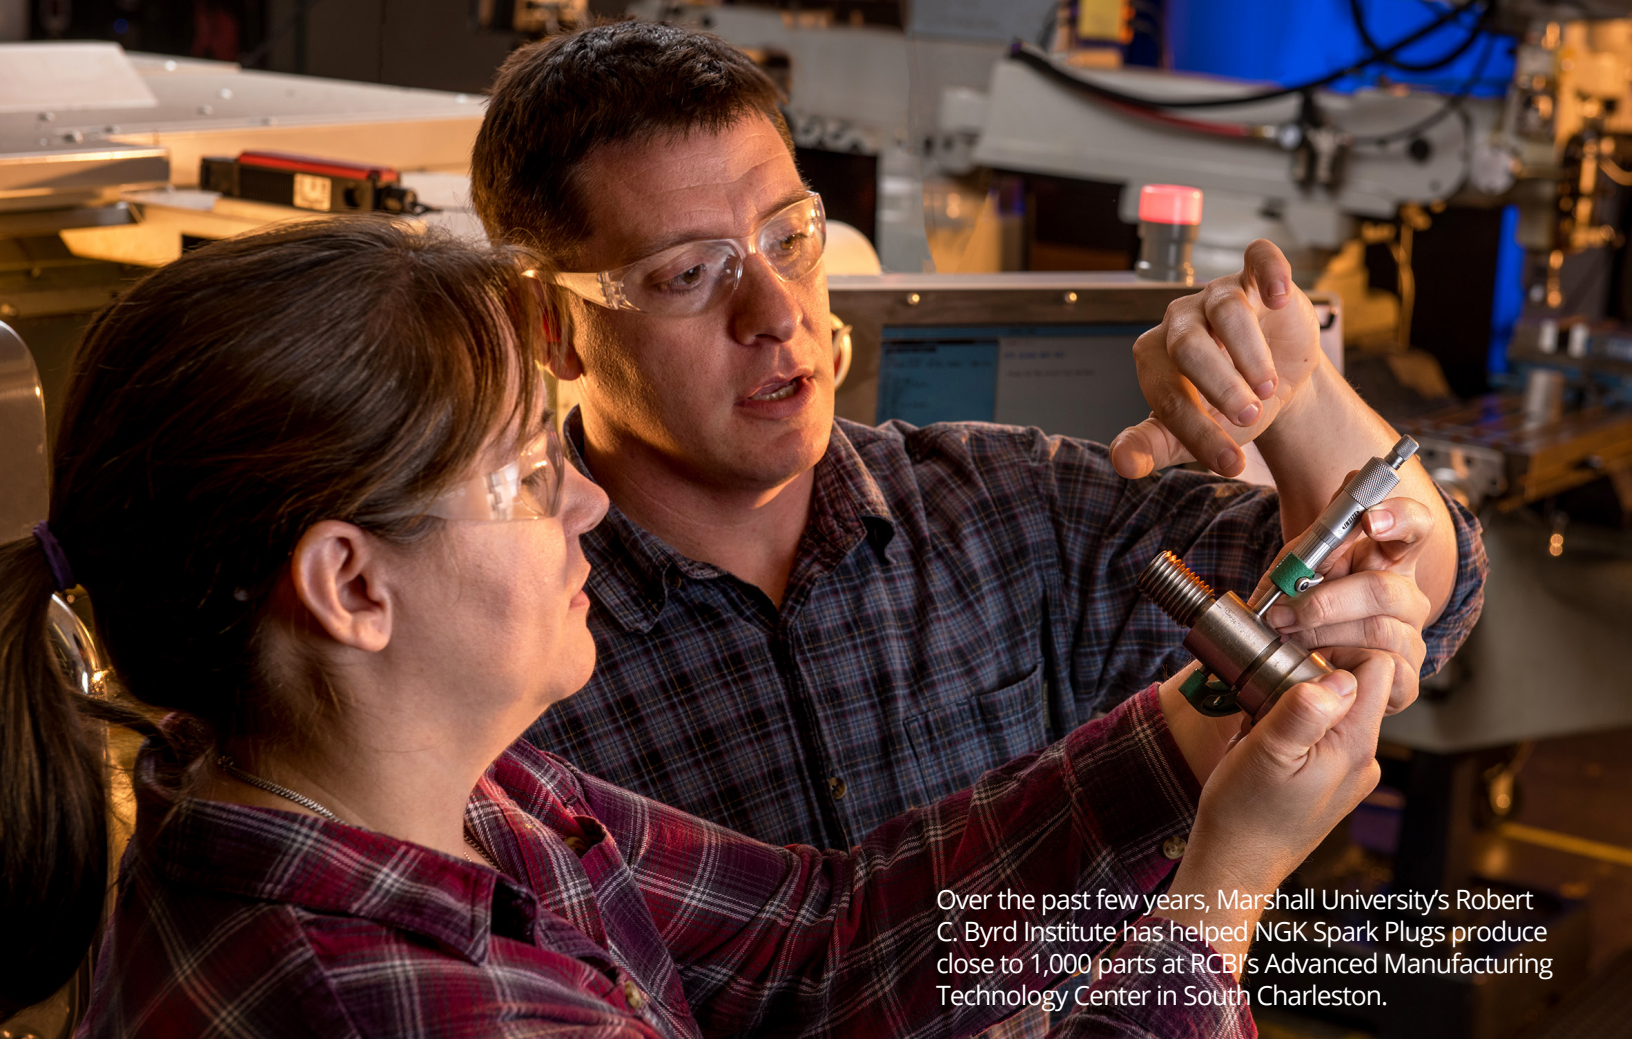

In March 2019, the West Virginia Legislature passed Senate Bill 1, which established the WV Invests Grant. Through this last-dollar-in grant program, students use other federal and/or state financial aid awards first, with WV Invests covering the remaining costs of tuition and fees at the state's nine community and technical colleges. With three out of four of jobs in the current economy requiring postsecondary education or training, West Virginia Invests is designed to help more West Virginians earn the credentials they need to land a rewarding career in their home state. Priority is given to programs in high-demand fields, such as information technology or healthcare, as determined by the West Virginia Department of Commerce.

UNDERWOOD-SMITH TEACHING SCHOLARS PROGRAM

Established by the Legislature in 2019, the Underwood-Smith Teaching Scholars Program is a competitive scholarship for recent high school graduates with a passion for teaching and a history of high academic achievement, community service, and active involvement in extracurricular activities while in high school. Recipients will receive $10,000 per year for up to four years. In exchange, Underwood-Smith Teaching Scholars must agree to teach in a West Virginia public school in an area of critical need (math, science, elementary education, or special education) for a period of five years after graduating from college. Administered by the Higher Education Policy Commission (HEPC), the scholarship may be used at any eligible West Virginia public or private, non-profit college or university offering West Virginia Board of Education-approved teacher preparation programs in these critical need areas. More information is available at teachinwv.com.

EXPLORER ONLINE DATA PORTAL

As part of an effort to streamline and modernize the state's higher education accountability system, the West Virginia Legislature passed a bill in 2019 that allowed for the creation of Explorer – a new interactive online data portal that is now available on the Higher Education Policy Commission's website (wvhepc.edu). Explorer makes data on key enrollment, student success and degree production metrics more easily accessed by the public. Additional dashboards provide local data on factors such as the college-going rate, progress toward reaching the state's educational attainment goal, and the percentage of students who complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid. Explorer also includes interactive reports from the state's P-20 data system on the pathways students followed from their 10th grade year of high school through higher education, as well as the wages graduates earned after college. The P-20 data system is the result of an ongoing collaboration between the West Virginia Department of Education, HEPC, West Virginia Community and Technical College System (CTCS), and Workforce West Virginia.

Over the past few years, Marshall University's Robert C. Byrd Institute has helped NGK Spark Plugs produce close to 1,000 parts at RCBI's Advanced Manufacturing Technology Center in South Charleston.

APPRENTICESHIPS IN MOTION

The West Virginia Community and Technical College System was awarded a nearly $4 million grant from the U.S. Department of Labor in 2019, paving the way for students to be trained or retrained while working and earning salaries in information technology jobs. With matching salary dollars from the private industry, Apprenticeships in Motion (AIM) builds upon the state's already successful Learn and Earn program, which connects employers with students, allowing them to take technical courses while getting paid work experiences. Job-placement rates in the Learn and Earn program have been historically extremely high, with nearly 100 percent of students going on to work for the companies that provided their training.

INTERAGENCY LEADERSHIP TEAM

Beginning this year, State Superintendent of Schools Steven L. Paine and Chancellor Sarah Tucker convened an Interagency Leadership Team made up of senior staff from the Department of Education, HEPC and CTCS to engage in an open dialogue aimed at creating a seamless education system. They broke the group into subcommittees honing in on key areas, including teacher preparation, the P-20 data system, social and emotional health, and strategic planning. These groups will continue meeting and working toward shared goals and initiatives to ensure sustained alignment for West Virginia's students.

“Together with each of our partners, we look forward to building on recent progress and thoughtfully tackling the challenges ahead...”

ABOUT THE 2019 ALMANAC

The provides year-end higher education statistics for both of the state's higher education systems, the West Virginia Higher Education Policy Commission (Commission) and West Virginia Council for Community and Technical College Education (Council).

When reviewing the statistics in this report, it is important to carefully consider the data definitions for each metric, which are found at the end of the document. This is particularly important when it comes to the cohort, or group of students, of which the statistic is reflective. For example, there are fundamental differences between "full-time" and "part-time" students that can have a drastic effect on the reported data.

This edition of the Almanac provides high-level summary statistics for each institution, with a focus on the 2018-2019 academic year. Detailed historical data are available through the new interactive data portal - Explorer - at:

<http://www.wvhepc.edu/resources/data-and-publication-center>

Explorer provides the most current data available for every institution within both the two- and four-year systems. The data are reflective of fall end-of-term reporting and are updated throughout the year as they become available.
